District Court Audit Concluded; Administrator Schuette Resigns

In an official press release dated September 13, 1993, the 34th District Court's Acting Administrator/Director of Probation, Carol S. Bowman, announced the resignation of Court Administrator Nancy L. Schuette, stating, "The Court and Ms. Schuette have mutually agreed that it is in the best interests of all concerned that a new Court Administrator be appointed."

Schuette, along with Deputy Administrator Tammy Riopelle, has been on paid leave since March pending the results of a Court audit.

According to Chief District Court Judge William Szlinis, the audit was initiated after Judge Felix Rogalle, also of the 34th District Court, discovered possible "improprieties in accounting procedures," and approached him (Szlinis) with the findings. Szlinis contacted the Supreme Court Administrative Office, and a Court audit was ordered.

Conducted by the Organized Crime Unit of the Michigan State Police Conspiracy Crimes Division under the direction of Detective Sergeant Robert Peplinski, the investigation continued for approximately seven months, and was only recently completed. Peplinski told

The Romulus Newsthat he is not permitted to discuss the results of the audit, which have been turned over to Assistant Attorney General Robert lanni. Ianni also declined to comment on the investigation's results, saying that he would not make a statement until he has thoroughly reviewed all materials and decided whether or not there is reason for charges to be leveled.

Judge Szlinis – who reported that Schuette tendered her resignation after she and her attorney met with Court officials recently – said that the Court is ready to begin its search for a new administrator, and has drawn up a new set of specifications for the purpose.

"We're ready to move on in a positive direction," Szlinis stated. "We want to continue providing the Community with the same high-integrity judicial government to which it has been accustomed in the past."

Schuette's resignation comes after 15 years of employment with the 34th District Court, including approximately five years as its administrator.

To date, there has been no change in Deputy Administrator Riopelle's "paid leave" status. □

Annual RAC Arts & Crafts Fair Offered a Variety of Treasures

Romulus Historic Park, at its best on a day of simply glorious weather, provided a beautiful setting for the Romulus Arts Council's annual Arts & Crafts Fair, held on Saturday, September 18. The event, which featured a variety of wares from approximately 40 crafters, contained other highlights as well: a United Methodist Women's bake sale, which raised almost $400 for Community United Methodist's coffers; the music of Gypsy Cab; and an opportunity to browse through the Historical Museum.

Pennington, Council Appeal to MDOT for Help with RR Woes

Dismayed by the railroads' lack of response to repeated City pleas for measures which would mitigate the excessive train-whistle noise endured by Romulus residents, City Councilman Ellis Pennington asked the Council – at its Monday, September 6, 1993 meeting – to seek assistance from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT). The Council concurred with his recommendation, and resolved to send a letter to MDOT requesting the Department's help.

Said Pennington, "The Council understands that trains are required, by law, to use their whistles to warn people that they are approaching a railroad crossing, but there is no need for the whistles to be so annoyingly loud during the hours when most people are sleeping.

"Unfortunately," he continued, "in spite of their past promises, the railroads have refused to cooperate with us on this noise problem. There are six gate-crossings located in a highly populated area less than one mile in radius, and when the night trains use their whistles to blast excessive warning signals, a large number of residents – especially the senior citizens who live in the Downtown high-rise – suffer."

According to Pennington, the Council will suggest to MDOT that, at the six crossings mentioned, the trainwhistle warning system be replaced by the use of crossing gates with extended gate arms that vehicles cannot drive around. These gate arms could be illuminated with strobe lighting that would be readily visible at reasonable distances.

Annual Cropwalk Will Again Raise Funds for the Hungry

On Sunday, October 3, organizers of the annual Belleville—Romulus Cropwalk hope to have more than 300 walkers carrying pledges of $20,000 to raise money to feed the hungry in our area and throughout the world. Of special interest to this year's Walk organizers are the hungry left in the wake of the Midwest floods.

Joining together in the Church World Service's Cropwalk for the eleventh consecutive year are six Area churches: Community United Methodist (Romulus), Trinity Episcopal (Belleville), Belleville Presbyterian, Belleville Methodist, St. Anthony's Roman Catholic (Belleville), and Faith United Methodist (Denton). Walk organizers also hope for the continued support of students and staff from Romulus High School, who have participated in the fund-raiser for the past two years (one Romulus teacher raised over $1,300 last year), as well as Romulus businesses, which contributed over $1,750 to last year's Walk.

Walk organizers meet early each year to begin their planning. Representatives from each church work on the board that decides which local agencies to support and how to encourage community participation. One-fourth of all monies raised are given to local hunger organizations, with the remaining money distributed nationally and internationally. Area agencies that have been designated to receive funds in 1993 are Helping Hand of Romulus, the Belleville Emergency Food Closet, and St. Vincent de Paul of Belleville.

The 1992 Belleville–Romulus Cropwalk was, by far, the most successful in the event's 10-year history. Over $17,000 was collected by 248 walkers.

The Belleville–Romulus Walk is just one of over 120 Cropwalks held annually throughout Michigan. For the last several years, Michigan has led the Nation in monies raised through Cropwalks. In 1992, over $1.7 million was raised and distributed to alleviate hunger.

Walk organizers are excited about this year's event, and hope to achieve a 20% increase in walkers and pledges. If you would like to learn more about Cropwalk, or would like to either participate or make a donation, please call Community United Methodist Church at 941-0736 or 941-2458.

Doing Donuts on a New Bike

By Tom Shamanski

Psychiatric intervention may be just ahead, folks; once again, I've embarked on a "Forever & Ever" fitness program. Currently, I'm into running, walking, jogging, rowing, lifting weights, aerobic classes, calisthenics, curling, square dancing, marbles, and bicycling. Although I like marbles best, bicycling will probably be the exercise that I will do for the rest of my life. At least with biking, I can go far enough to reach Dan Donut's Doughnuts & Used Car Shop.

One day last week, after pumping a tortuous four blocks to Dan's, I was parked at my usual stool at the end of the counter. Suddenly, a tall, willowy, toothpick of a man sat down next to me. Sporting a redwith-black-polka-dots suit and a somewhat-bright, fluorescent-pink-and-blue tie, he was quite the dresser, I thought. He introduced himself as Stu – Stu D. Bakker – and began questioning me about my bike.

"So, Scooter," he said. "Where'd you get that nifty bike?...From your mama?"

He wasn't far off. Actually, it's my sister's bike; I'm renting with an option to buy.

"Naw," I replied, "It's my girlfriend's, but she lets me, ah, use it to work out on. Why?"

"Well, Dolly Donut told me that you're an avid cyclist. Is that true?"

"Absolutely," I replied. Dolly was Dan's wife. About two weeks earlier, I had told her how I had finished second in the county's Annual Bicycle Demolition Derby.

"Well, listen, Scoot, if you're really serious about bicycling, maybe I can help you out."

"Oh, I'm serious sir. I'm into biking for the rest of my life," I answered.

"Yep, I kinda thought so. Now, I've got a new, experimental, high-tech, state-of-the-art bicycle that would be perfect for you."

Ordering more of Donut's doughnuts, he began describing this new bike. First of all, it was totally enclosed for maximum protection against the elements. Also, instead of handlebars, it had a circular wheel for steering and, instead of the usual bicycle seat, it came equipped with an actual chair, located right behind the wheel for steering.

"But can you pump it?" I asked.

"Sure, there's a pedal on the left side that needs pumping all the time. C'mon outside; I'll show ya."

With that, we steered out into Donut's parking lot. Stu pointed to what looked to be an old, rust-devoured, 1972 Plymouth.

"There she is, Scoot; all yours for the asking – and a few bucks."

"But, Mr. Bakker, sir, it's a car."

"Noooo, my son, it's an enclosed bicycle that looks like a car – and that's the beauty of it."

"Huh?"

"Scooter, have you ever been mugged?"

"Well, yes, when I was jogging one night a couple of years ago. It's funny you ask; I was telling Mrs. Donut about it just the other day."

"So, don't you get it? You'll be working out on the inside of what looks like a car. Who's going to mug you in a car?"

He was absolutely right, of course. Nobody would bother me in a car, especially one in such bad condition. Within minutes, we struck a deal: for $2,999 cash, he'd even throw in an AM radio. Quickly, Stu scooted off.

The next morning, I was working out in my new, enclosed bike when a policeman pulled me over. When I asked why, he told me that I had expired license plates, and then asked for my registration and proof of insurance.

"For a bike? I don't understand."
"Listen, Citizen, this is no bike. You're looking to cop an insanity plea, right?"

Later, the judge straightened out everything, explaining that I had been taken by a rather unique car salesman. So, I asked her, what can I do?

Her Honor, furrowing her brow and studying me some, finally said, "If I were you, I'd enter the Annual Used-Car Demolition Derby. You might win enough to buy a few marbles." In the same to you have

I would like to say thank you to all of the folks who signed my candidacy petitions as well as to the many people who have supported me throughout my years of service to the community.

I would like to encourage everyone to exercise their right to vote by going to the polls on November 2.

I hope that you will affirm your faith in my ability to represent you by casting your vote for me at that time.

Michigan's Autumn Colors Should Be Spectacular

If the good weather holds, this fall color season should be spectacular, according to AAA Michigan.

"We're looking at a traditional fall color season, with trees already changing color in the western end of the Upper Peninsula," said AAA Michigan Member Services director Peter Erickson. "If we experience bright, sunny days and cool nights, the intensity of color should be phenomenal."

Professor Melvin Koelling of Michigan State University concurs. Wet weather earlier in the summer encouraged healthy growth in the trees, which means that leaves will be bigger and brighter when they turn to autumn shades, he said.

Visitors to Michigan's fall color fresco will find a canvas of 65 species of trees in 18 million acres of forest. The show will peak in mid-to-late September in the Upper Peninsula and northern tip of the Lower Peninsula. For the rest of the Lower Peninsula, late September will find colors at their best in the remaining third of its northern portion; early-to-mid October will be the peak for mid Michigan; and the southern end of the State will peak in mid-to-late October.

Fall color is more dependable near bodies of water because the humidity is higher and growing conditions are more dependable, said Koelling. Peak time for viewing can run up to a week later near lakes than in forested areas.

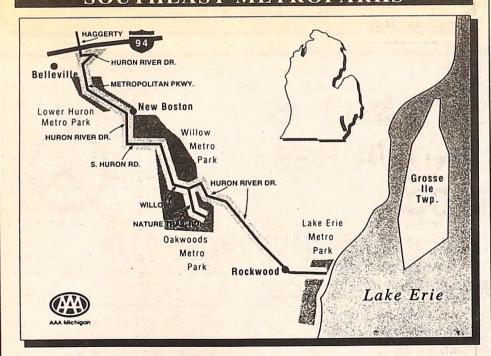

It is possible to predict your favorite trees' shades of color in advance. Tree species and other deciduous plants which generally produce red leaves include red maple, sumac, and burning bush. Trees with a yellow tinge are aspen, basswood, and white ash. The color orange is typical in sumac, sugar maple, and dogwood. Reddish brown or brown is found in some oaks and beech.

This year, the Automobile Club of Michigan has mapped eight driving routes that focus on fall color in State parks and forests; below are the two routes closest to Romulus residents. The eight routes range in length from 67 to 139 miles, and take from one hour, 45 minutes, to three hours to complete (without stops).

Free copies of all eight of the routes are available to the public at all AAA Michigan full-service branches throughout the State.

DAZZLING HUES AWAIT IN SOUTHEAST METROPARKS

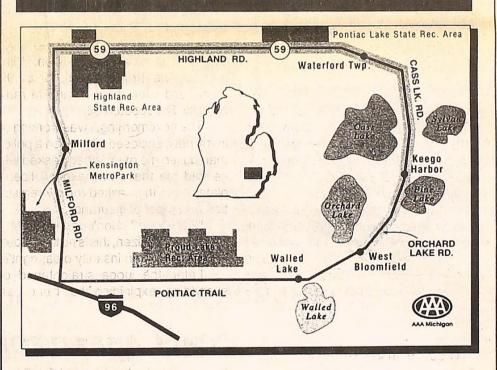

An October trip through four Huron-Clinton Metroparks in Detroit's southern suburbs will reward visitors with an abundance of autumn color. Belleville's Lower Huron Metropark has numerous deciduous trees and forested areas. A picnic table along the banks of the river makes a serene lunch stop. Willow Metropark in New Boston has plenty of activities for youngsters including a large activity area with a miniature, life-like town. A standout feature of Oakwoods Metropark in Flat Rock is its nature study area. Three colorful walking trails highlight themes of Indians and the land, forest ecology and the changing landscape. Visitors can view spectacular color along the Huron River from the park's 34-foot, 18-passenger canoe. At Lake Erie Metropark in Rockwood, the Huron River feeds into majestic Lake Erie. A lazy afternoon can be spent sitting along the park's colorful shore and taking in the expansive lake, distant islands and passing freighters.

When to go: Mid to late-October

OAKLAND COUNTY OFFERS LAKES & TREES

Oakland County boasts more lakes than any other county in the state, and plenty of oak, hickory, maple, aspen and ash trees surround those lakes. Begin your trip at the Milford Road exit off I-96. (There's a commuter parking lot at the exit, a good spot to join friends.) Heading north on Milford Road provides the opportunity to stop for a hike or canoe trip among the trees at Kensington Metropark or Proud Lake Recreation Area. You'll have to make a jog through Milford, but the quaint downtown is worth a stop for browsing, shopping or eating. Eastbound travel on M-59 provides easy access to a couple of other parks for hiking and biking: Highland and Pontiac Lake State recreation areas. At Cass Lake Road, head south to Orchard Lake Road and Pontiac Trail. This is where the real treat begins, especially where the sun reflects the vibrant yellow, orange and bright reds off the waters of Sylvan, Cass, Pine and Orchard lakes. As you make your way back to Milford Road, stop for a treat at one of the many fresh produce stands and take advantage of the colorful fruits that autumn trees bring.

When to go: mid to late October. Estimated driving time/mileage (without stops):

1 hour 20 minutes/45 miles.

Romulus Profile: Gwen Sibert

By Tom Shamanski

In 1981, 18-year Romulus resident Gwen Sibert began a 10-year stint of hosting her own television show, which was called The Healthy Cook Show. The 42-year-old Detroit native's program, aired by Detroit television station WGPR—TV62, stressed healthy food preparation and demonstrated the importance of healthful nutrition in our lives.

When, in a recent interview, Sibert was asked how The Healthy Cook Show came to fruition, she replied, "About 14 years ago, I was interviewed on a WGPR Morning Magazine segment dealing with the preparation of healthy food. As a result of that interview, the station received several calls from people wanting to know more about good nutrition. From all that, the station soon asked me to host my own show."

Besides cooking, said Sibert, the weekly half-hour program included interviews with health experts and presentations of relevant human-interest stories.

In order to further hone her cooking talents, Sibert attended nutritional classes at the Detroit Center for Natural Healing in 1982. Prior to that, she had been in a liberal arts program at both the University of Detroit and Marygrove College.

In 1989, Sibert was going through a divorce – but, as she said, "Because of my strong belief in God, I knew that my needs, and my children's needs, would be taken care of."

And, indeed, they were, as it was during that particular time that Florine Mark – now president and CEO of The WW Group, Inc., the largest franchise of Weight Watchers International – was a guest on The Healthy Cook Show. Subsequent to taping the program, Mark offered Sibert a position with Weight Watchers as an account representative – a post that she holds to this day.

After stating that, currently, she works in Weight Watchers' "At Work" program, Sibert noted, "Currently, I'm Weight Watchers' busiest account representative in the Country. My job consists of marketing and negotiation with prospective business clients and, ultimately, scheduling weekly meetings at the work place."

Sibert schedules a highly impressive average of more than 70 meetings per week. A list of her clients, she said, would include the "Big Three" automakers, Blue Cross Blue Shield, and a number of Area hospitals and other local business concerns.

Sibert is also the WW Group's coordinator of special events. As such, she raises funds for organizations like Meals on Wheels, the Coalition on Temporary Shelter, the March of Dimes Walk-athon, the Battle of Badges, and – most significant to Sibert – the Post Polio Coalition.

The Rost Polio Coalition is a group of .

high consequence to Sibert because, in 1952, at 18 months of age, she fell victim to the dreaded disease—one year before the advent of the polio vaccine.

Said Sibert, "At first, the doctors gave my mother a lot of negative information about me. They said that I'd never walk again, never dance or play, and even told her that I might become retarded. But through it all, my mother always saw me as being a 'normal' child, even when I was in an iron lung."

At age 12, Sibert fulfilled her and her mother's dream when, for the first time, she was able to wear a new pair of shoes

"black patent-leather shoes!" she beamed, with justifiable pride.

"My mother had said all along that, someday, I would wear 'normal' shoes," Sibert continued. "It was when I first wore those new shoes that I truly felt like a 'normal' kid. It's because of my mother's belief in me that I am what I am today.

"Also," she added, "having had polio as a child is what initially sparked my interest in the direction of healthy food."

Sibert then took the opportunity to encourage parents of a disease-stricken child, saying that, no matter what the prognosis, "Just keep pushing. . . . Just keep pushing."

Not one to shy away from social issues and causes, Sibert is presently affiliated with Focus: HOPE, the Post Polio Coalition, the Children's Make a Wish Foundation, and the Coalition on Temporary Shelter, and is the president, founder, and executive director of Wee Care About Others, Inc.

"Wee Care About Others," explained Sibert, "was actually inspired by my children, who were 11 and nine years old in 1985. At that time — after seeing, on television, the starving children in Ethiopia — they asked me, 'How can we help, Mommy? Can we share our rooms or our clothes?"

The incident marked the point in time when Sibert formed Wee Care About Others as an organization for children who wish to help with various problems and/or causes. At present, the Group raises funds to distribute meals to senior citizens and the homeless. The Group also solicits Christmas gifts yearly and distributes these gifts to disadvantaged Romulus families.

"I feel that this is an excellent way to teach our youth that they, themselves, can derive great satisfaction in giving to others," stated Sibert. "I've tried to instill those types of values in my children since they were little."

In November 1988, Sibert participated in a National event that may best illustrate her devotion to worthwhile causes.

She explained: "There was a weeklong demonstration in Washington to furthe the cause of the homeless. All week,

I fasted and slept in a shelter for the homeless, which included a lot of Vietnam vets."

Sibert went on to note that several National celebrities – Cher, Casey Kasem, and Dr. Benjamin Spock, among others – were on hand to lend their support to the cause.

"In tune" to the power of the printed word, Sibert has had more than 20 articles concerning social issues and healthy eating published in newspapers and magazines like Detroit's Free Press and News, Baton Rouge, Louisiana's Morning Advocate, and – perhaps the Country's most prestigious newspaper – The New York Times.

Recently, Sibert filed to have her name included among those candidates seeking a seat on the Romulus City Council this November. Since each of the current Council members, when profiled by The Romulus News, was given an opportunity to list three Council achievements of which he/she was the most proud, Sibert – as a Council candidate – was asked to list three goals that she would pursue if elected.

"My first goal," said Sibert, "would be to do more for our young people. For instance, I'd work toward having our young people elect one of their peers as a nonvoting member of the Council — something that other communities have already done. I feel that it would not only give youngsters valuable information on the workings of City government, but it would also be a way in which the youth of Romulus could give feedback to us adults regarding how they feel about different things.

"Also," she added, "I would like to see a cable TV program put on by our children. It would not only have shows for the kids, but would also include some parenting programs."

Acting as a "bridge" between the Romulus Community Schools and the City government was listed as Sibert's second objective if she is elected to Council in November.

"The Schools and the City," she stated, "have been apart too long. I feel that it will take everyone's cooperation to orient our young people in a positive direction."

Money Talk

Financial Planning Workshop To Be Offered Through Romulus Adult Ed

By Grover Kahl, financial planner

Over the years, in my financial-planning practice, I have dealt with many people who made good money during their career of employment, but had very little to show for it when the time for retirement came. Many of us tend to think that, between the pension checks we'll be receiving from GM, Ford, or Chrysler, and the Social Security checks from dear ol' Uncle Sam, we won't have a thing to worry about - but that just isn't

When retirement comes, we find that company pension plans and Social Security cover only about 60% of what we need to continue living in the manner to which we became accustomed during our working years. We wait decades to enjoy the retirement of our dreams, only to find that, because our income is 40% smaller, we may not be able to afford the new boat (or whatever) that would help make our dreams come true.

The question is: Where is the other 40% of our income going to come from? The answer: It must come from investments and planning.

Unfortunately, as the saying goes, "People don't plan to fail. . . . They just fail to plan."

But there's always help available; you just need to take advantage of it.

Each Tuesday, beginning October 5 and continuing for four consecutive weeks, I will be teaching a workshop for Romulus Adult Education on the subject of "Financial Planning for the '90s.'

Session #1's topic will be money management, and will cover such items as cash-management systems, setting personal goals, and how to make your paycheck last.

In Session #2, personal financial planning will be discussed. Topics covered will include risk management, education funding, and retirement planning.

Session #3, on winning investment strategies, will cover setting investment objectives, diversification, and how mutual funds work.

An estate-planning attorney and an accountant will be teaching Session #4, which will cover topics such as deductions and tax credits, gifts and property transfers, and wills and trusts.

A fifth session can be scheduled for those who want to sit down at a computer and run an actual plan to see where they are financially. Since most people want to keep their personal business private, this session will be done in my office on an individual basis.

The cost for the four sessions is only $40 per family unit. This covers all of the materials that will be used; there will be no products offered or selling done at the workshops. If you wish to take advantage of the services and products that my company offers after the workshops are ended, I will be available on an appointment basis.

Come and join us at the workshops. You will learn a great deal about your finances. For more information, call Kahl & Associates (941-7310); to register, call Romulus Adult Education (941-0610).

Sibert's third goal, if she is elected, would be improvement in the City's lighting and streets.

Sibert's daughter, 19-year-old Nezula, is a sophomore at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. Nezula - who enjoys listening to jazz and also likes creative activities such as drawing and painting - is presently leaning toward obtaining a degree in business. As a child, she was a professional model.

Son Calvin L., 17, is a senior at Southgate's Aquinas High School. Currently thinking in terms of an accounting or teaching degree, he's looking forward to attending Kalamazoo's Western Michigan University next fall. Calvin L. works for Little Caesars after school and on weekends, allowing him to purchase his own car and pay for his own insurance.

To relax, Sibert enjoys "going to the water." In addition, she tries to find time for meditation, reading, and visiting terminally ill children at Area hospitals.

"After my years with polio," she said, "hospitals are like home to me. When I'm visiting the kids, I tell them that, if they can think it, they can create it."

As the interview drew to a close, Sibert stated that she is vying for a Romulus City Council seat because she feels that she can make a difference.

"Romulus should be perceived as more than just the city that's home to the Airport," said Sibert. "By putting our children first, I think that Romulus can actually set the tone for our country in this regard. We must initiate programs for our kids and, therefore, bridge the overall 'people gap' in this manner."

Sibert then noted that her official campaign slogan is "Bridging Gaps."

Perhaps due to her constant - even heroic - battle with polio in her difficult childhood years, Sibert is undoubtedly an individual whose strong sense of commitment is a great motivator in her drive to become involved in the causes that matter to her. Romulus is extremely fortunate to count her among the "movers and shakers" within the Community.

New Session Begins at HCCN

Huron Countryside Co-op Nursery (HCCN) began the new school year on September 14 with two three-year-old and two prekindergarten classes.

The school provides a warm, loving, and exciting atmosphere for children ages 21/2 to five. Classes are conducted under the direction of Mrs. Lois Winfield, who has dedicated over 15 years of service to HCCN. Three parents also assist during each class. Parents are required to participate in nursery-school activities.

A few openings still remain in both the three-year-old and four-year-old classes. Tuition is $28 per month for the three-year-old class and $42 per month for the prekindergarten class. Children must be toilet trained. If you are interested in enrolling your child in HCCN - a nonprofit, nondiscriminatory organization - or would like to know more about it, please call 753-4126.

During this first few weeks of school, the Nursery is busy preparing for the annual Huron Township Applefest. HCCN will be selling homemade apple pies for $5 each at its apple-pie booth October 2-3 from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. HCCN will also participate in the parade - bundledup children will ride on a hay wagon while their proud parents cheer them on from behind. Come and join us for the fun!

... And farewell to Sam Bufford, David Frazier, Antonio Bland, and Eric Hausch. We thank all of them for their time and service to our City.

Happy birthday to Gary Marchel (September 7), Keith Debruhl (September 11), Darnell Hearst (September 16), Tim Scanlon (September 20), Scott, Ladach (September 22), Richard Martz

Jr. (September 26), Greg Milatz (September 27), and Pete Bergeron (September 29).

Anyone interested in taking the class should contact the office: 941-8585. (Specific details pertaining to the classes will be published at a later date. Classes are subject to community response.)

Did you know that the United States has one of the highest per-capita rates of fire-related death in the industrial world? Approximately 5,500 Americans die in fires annually (this number includes about 100 firefighters); another 30,000 civilians are injured.

Each year, more Americans are killed by fire than by all other major natural emergencies – including floods, hurricanes, tornadoes, and earthquakes – combined.

Fire is the third-leading cause of accidental death in the home; at least 70% of all fire deaths occur in residences.

More than two million fires are reported each year. Direct property loss attributable to fires is estimated at $11 billion annually. The total cost of fires to the American public is $50 billion per year. (This figure includes the cost of protection, fire-department expenses, and insurance overhead.)

"Our Home"

Inspections and Tests

By Celia Chesno, realtor

"I know that you recommend getting an independent home inspection," you tell your friendly realtor, "and we are going to get one – but is there anything else that we can do to insure that this home will be a good value for our money? If we have to pay for it for 30 years, I'd like it to last for that long. . . ."

"Well," she replies, "along with the home inspection, the city that your new home is in may require a city inspection. If you are buying on a government loan, you will have to have a 'wood-destroying insect' inspection and, if you choose, you can have the home tested for radon."

"Wow!" you exclaim, "we can check all those things? I feel more comfortable with this process all the time."

"Yes," your realtor assures you, "the city inspection will insure that the home you are buying is up to the city's codes. If there are repairs to be made, the city will document them and then come back and re-inspect to make sure that they have been done properly. Some cities don't require them, so we will have to check with the city that your potential new home is located in."

"But," you ask, "we don't have termites in Michigan, do we?"

Your realtor explains that, although many people don't realize it, termites do thrive in this state. Michigan termites are sub-terrain termites, which means that they live in the ground, and sometimes come in along cracks in the foundation. Some areas are more prone than others and, for the most part, they are not a problem around here. But you never know. . . .

Then you ask, "What about radon? What the heck is it? I keep hearing about

Your realtor tells you that radon is a radioactive gas that results from the decay of uranium in the soil. It comes up from the ground and finds its way into your home through cracks. Your home, which is fairly tightly sealed, can trap this gas inside.

"We can ask to have a short-term radon test, which generally takes two days," she says. "The process involves leaving a charcoal canister in the home to collect air samples, then sending it off to a lab for study to determine if there is a problem."

"Do I need all these things done before I buy?" you ask. "How will I decide which is the best for me?"

Again, your realtor reassures you. "I can help you decide. You know that I am here to help you make good decisions."

Please feel free to call me at Century 21 Suburban (464-0205) or my home (941-5704). I also carry a beeper (941-0941) so you can call me anytime.
